CS Open Cup Fall 2002 - Qualifier Changes

Posted by Fluke at 11:12 2/9/2002.

ClanBase have made some changes regarding the size of the regional qualifiers for their Fall 2002 CS Open Cup:

"Due to the large amount of signups from Southern region, Eastern Europe and the rather small number of UK/IE clans, we decided to limit the amount of clans that can qualify from the UK/IE qualifiers to 8. This means only 64 clans will be selected to play in the qualifiers this season."

The other regions have been altered as follows:

- 6 clans from the Eastern Qualifier
- 8 clans from the Benelux Qualifier
- 8 clans from the UK and Ireland Qualifier
- 10 clans from the Southern Qualifier
- 16 clans from the Central Qualifier
- 16 clans from the Northern Qualifier

Thats a pretty bad sign for the UK Scene. It just proves that we have very few well known clans at that level now. Bring back the days when Snipers Alley were 3rd!

the uk is only gunna get one entrant to the eurocup really. + dnc from ireland cos lets be honest. Everyone can beat nocturne atm

[Comment: Report | IP: Logged]

Rhyzz` 12:59 2/9/2002	deean, thats so true. But why should dNC get in? not like they impressed last year [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
DArtagnan` 13:17 2/9/2002	Well there's really no other clan that has done anything in the UK since last 1, so i'd guess it would be the same 3 again if they let in 2 uk and 1 irish. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Thorin 13:18 2/9/2002	"the uk is only gunna get one entrant to the eurocup really. + dnc from ireland cos lets be honest. ryano theb0g 13:25 2/9/2002	Exactly and that dNC wud smash nocturne - last I heard north and south drew with noc? [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

Protex Infinity-eSports 13:48 2/9/2002	Not many big names in the UK scene for this Cup but with the help of Esport-Pro their should hopefully be more for next time :) [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
DArtagnan` 14:07 2/9/2002	e-sport pro cant improve teams, it can only give teams the incentive to become more proffessional. The nature of the UK community having such young players means that could be unlikely. There needs to be an increase in maturity to bring about an increase in professionalism. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Genics thed0n 14:12 2/9/2002	oh so true. thent here is the fact that most of the players from ie-s and dnc are on isdn so already have things cut out for them when playing on european servers [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Protex Infinity-eSports 14:30 2/9/2002	Well my team has a 17+ age policy and the maturity necessary. We are working on the skills front and with some support from other areas see ourselves up near the top in the future. I do agree that the scene is full of the younger age groups and this doesnt help the scene since most of the large competitions are abroad and sending small children all that way isnt healthy.

A lot of UK clans seem to think they aren't good enough to even signup... I mean it's likely that there won't be many who will get through to the finals or whatever but it's pretty sad when they don't even bother signing up.

Surely there are some clans in div 1 in some of the leagues who could have signed up, maybe even some div 2 ones as well.

Just a pity CBUK was ruined by all the gimmick/joke/anonymous clans a few months ago, so UK clans now ignore CB to a large extent. Even now it's pretty empty, and impossible to get a game. We had 6 games lined up for last week; two there was just no response to the challenge, even in IRC, one was cancelled and the other three rescheduled to be in two months time. Pretty sad really.

Lots of new clans popping up every week with 'big names' in them, they win a few matches then fade away. Blah. It's just a bit sad that places with half the UK population get twice as many signups...

think it is the toher way round tbh. clans think they are to good and cant face it when they are proved not to by the true top clans yeah that's also true, but it doesn't explain the lack of signups, unless all the new clans suddenly got beaten and folded just last week or something 🤔:)

Surely there are more than 8 competent/capable clans in the UK?

Perhaps clans are scared off by the need to be a 'pro clan' now, and if they don't have the time for that sort of stuff they think they might as well not bother...?

I'm wondering rather than criticising here really, I just can't figure it out.

To be honest now, ANY UK clan signing up for the Eurocup is taking the p. Two UK clans will get in, I-eS and dNC and they will be invited. It makes me laugh that clans put down their skill as 9 or 10 and ask for entry for the EuroCup. They must be ignorant or just plain dumb. No UK clan will do anything because as someone above said most now form up as 'world beaters' lose a game and disband. What a great basis for a strong community.

I don't see why they're exactly taking the p. Sure they probably won't get into the finals but they might as well give it a go.

Better to give the opencup a go and go out fighting than not enter at all... But clans nowadays are just frightened of losing their reputation so they don't play, and just rely on the rep of their players.

Worst really is people moaning about clans rather than just playing - oops 🤦🏻:)

[Comment: Report | IP: Logged]

DArtagnan` 17:38 2/9/2002	Well last eurocup I-eS was just going through it's whole team changes, so not everything was settled. This time we expect a much better run in the eurocup. Really only 1 player will be on isdn in the team, meaning we should hopefully have a good run and make lan finals. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
iron 17:41 2/9/2002	give the eurocup a try? that doesnt make too much sense, how many uk clans can actually beat dNC and i-es regularly? the answer is none of very very few, and look how well i-es and dNC did in the eurocup...not very well. So ur suggesting clans who are clearly nowhere near the top uk clans skill level apply for something they dont stand a chance of getting accepted for, is just a waste of effort. 	DArtagnan` 19:57 2/9/2002	Why complain about 8 teams going in from the UK? We get more or equal to all the other nation groups.....6 from the whole of eastern europe(we get more than them), 8 from belgium/holland/luxemburg(we get more than them).....10 from spain/italy(get more than them).....then france and germany get the same with 16 between the 2 countries, and then scandinavia gets 16 between sweden, finland, denmark, norway(more than them). So UK will have a very big representation in the Open cup. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

	PHB 21:03 2/9/2002	How are you managing to get off ISDN greg you basterd :) Also the Eurocup consists of stable clans that have competed at a high level for a decent time. Also keep in mind that clanbase likes to have one team from each country. Last Eurocup wasn't the best preformance from dNC but with Gid - Muzz - Stinky in there shall be some bleeding holes if you catch my drift.... [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

	PHB 21:06 2/9/2002	Also 6 clans is pretty good because there is like 2 clans that would even try to qual for the opencup in IE atm and I doubt one of them will, the other clan should be able to get in, so that leaves 5 places, assuming. Which would leave what ONE - Noc - ui - ? - ? I dont really know the clan scene too well in UK [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

Chris0 22:20 2/9/2002	Theres over 100 teams signed up for Qualifiers from UK, obviously there are going to be more sign ups from Central Europe than UK/IE, just think how many countries there are and clans in each country. Only Ies + Element has put in Just for EuroCup, so no idea what the 100 or so teams is a low amount. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
