I swear Dev's psychic since I had exactly the same sort of post planned for this morning. Anyway just to pick up on the few things he missed:

- The ex ClanONE star Kid has joined up with Benji and co at m0o.
- Whether he's joined as a full time member, or just plays the odd game, but Baal who recently left omg! is currently playing for s3, along with ex Team UK player Purple and Stan (not sure which one).
- Aragorn recently left 6K along with Penski due to other commitments.
- It seems sbs have reformed, taking on board the contingent who recently left iLLu, although this is strictly a "fun" clan. Xs and SiN have, from what I understand, joined ui on the serious side of things.
- 4D reformed again.
- Ne.uk merged with #xtcs to form XtCS.uk.
- fcc now have a Danish squad, more info can be found here.
- SO19 have removed Hektic from their squad and replaced him with the ex TRCC and LR player Nighty, who was reportedly going to join EndGame. Instead, after practicing with SO19 at Landed, chose to join them.
- AMeN failed a drugs test and couldn't play at landed.
- DArk0r left Obsessive and joined ClanNew.

Ho hum, pm me in IRC if I missed anything.

erm actually nobody won landed, the cs tourney was fubared and in the end 2 "finals" were run, clanNEW vs dirtfarmers and ftp vs kaizen, the first of the 2 might have been a serious game and u may have beat dirtfarmers, but seeing u never played the other good clans in the tournament (kaizen and ftp) you can't say you won it, you won your half-"final" but thats all you won.

The whole tourney was a shambles, which is why we (ftp) couldn't be arsed in our kaizen game and used our "fast tactics" - ie rushing every round against kaizen, this way the game just ended in the 15 mins we had before half our players left..

Like i posted in the landed forums before, if it was a serious tournament to win prizes, people would actually have tried to win it. The grudge match between so19 and ftp at least was a proper match- which we won ;D

My point is, you did not win at landed, there was no proper final. You are teh lose.

Right, I feel its in everyones interest if I clear up a few things.

Firstly I was not only Amen who was 'removed' from the lan and the premises but 4 or 5 of his friends as well, who were well on the way to hot-boxing a hire car, parked outside the venue front door and within sight of the manned gate house, had we (crew) not turned up. All of the people involved will not be attending any other Landed events in the future.

With regards to the cs 'tournament' there were no winners and people posting themselves as winners are doing themselves no favours. Due to a mis-management of the tournament, no final was held. The final would have been between Kaizen and ClanNew and if the guys involved are really that bothered, we can perhaps look at holding it online or at the next one.

Yes we had network problems, this was as much to do with people not following the instructions and setting up their networking as we had asked them as it was anything else. In the end we had guys from some of the best lans in the south helping out getting things sorted, and for this we are extremely grateful but we were all doing everything we could, including at one point spending £200 on cabling (most of which was promptly nicked) to replace what we thought could have been dodgy cables.

Which leads me on to the 'borrowing' that occurred. I find it very very sad that people come to an event like this and steal from people who, in essence are friends of theirs and there for the same reason; to have a good time and play some games. The list of niggly things that were stolen runs on my in particular I'd like to draw attention to the following:

Kappy's network card was stolen from out of his machine - we as good as know who did this, because the card he stole was put straight into his machine and needed replacing with one of ours (Ace's own personal network card), and they, nor their friends who also knew of it, will be attending anymore of the Landed events.

Nighty's phone was stolen.

Foosty (landed crew ffs!) had his everglide and optical mouse 'borrowed' by some kid who thought that all the kit on the crew stage was for borrowing. If it hadnt been for the fact Foosty had put a green LED in the back of his intellimouse, we would have never have found it.

Spooky's keyboard was also borrowed by someone who deemed their need for a keyb more important than his (Spooky wasnt able to keep an eye on his stuff at that particular time as he was crimping cable trying to get the network working)

Along with smaller items like, people getting up to use the loo and coming back to find someone has nicked their network cable. Many other mouse mats and cables went missing, not only ours but other gamers too.

One lesson Landed II did teach us is that you, sadly, cant trust people. I was just very disappointed that I placed my trust in fellow gamers and it was abused.

I can assure you that we (the crew) will be sitting down and examining closely what happened and why it went wrong in parts before the next one, if there is a next one.

Expect further news and announcements from www.landed-lan.co.uk

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the unofficial crew who were running around sorting out networking problems for everone else: Spelly, Ze Baron, Ze Wolverine, SithAdmin, Chief (Roweb) and Spooky to name but a few.

Thanks guys, a lot of fun was had by everyone over all, but I am a disappointed as some of you are about certain aspects. Rest assured it gets better 🍌:)

pity u didnt host in scotland eh, weed is practically legal here. Slap on the wrist from the polis for smokin it, a year for dealing.

"de-classifaction".

As for the theft well, i suppose thats just twisted. I'd have lost the plot if I found someone had stolen my stuff, and they wouldnt have been walking too far if I found who done it.

It isnt the fact that anyone gives a s about weed, im sure most people there smoke a few js a week.

Its the fact that if the university found out about it, then they would close the event, call the police, and no more landed.

The uni had there own security guards (in the gate house). Hence why they were asked to f off in nice terms.

yer that was pretty lame tbh with the stealing things, but thanks to me "pot-case" the lan kinda started a bit later so we didnt have enough time for the finals. Also the tounry map cycle was de_nuke, de_prodigy, de_dust2 de_aztec i know ftp won by default coz colours forfeited their prodigy game for the same reason we jus played for fun vs kaizen on aztec which was supposed to be the final map.

Also a reply to hairy: #clannew's topic says u came as a winner m8 :/

Denz 20:17 4/11/2002	only clan i even remotely was impressed with was #ftp.cs (So19 as well if amen hadnt draged the clan down) The rest had attitude probs, and cfgs to boot. Some obviosly good players, in some clans. But the whole i owned j00 rubbish is getting old now. wish everyone would just grow up, and play cs, like its ment to be played. lets hope e-sport pro slaps : good clans acting like kids into mature professional clans. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Aardvark theb0g 20:22 4/11/2002	I don't think any of the CS games could really be classed as 'finals', as when everyone should have been playing second round matches half of the clans had to leave. Any one of ClanNew, ftp, Kaizen, sOnLan, SO19 and colours could have conceivably won from that stage. Of the games played, the only one that was played fully committed by two of the possible finalists was ftp vs SO19, with ftp winning. They rock, I'm scared :P So 'Best Win' award goes to ftp ;) CLanNew only beat dirtfarmers 13-9. I find this shocking as I was playing for dirtfarmers. Dear oh dear :P [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
MaNiA 20:37 4/11/2002	Didnt want to put highlight on that game but tbh it had so much emotion and action that both teams deserved to win. The commitment ftp and SO19 put into it after each round was amazing. 13-10 i think was the final score and believe me even to the last round was 1on1 gg SO19 most memorable game for me tbh and shame there is no hltv demo of it [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
omg snarc 21:08 4/11/2002	"More than 10 smoked, only 1 got caught" - So why did I spend all weekend mulling round oxford with sam(r1sk), jeff(amen) and daryl(fragster) only to come back and get shouted at by a curly haired admin who was gonna "call security and get us arrested", for what? a teenth? wp... What i can guarantee that the halls of ressidence has harder "drugs" than a teenth of weed, maybe security would rather address us than tackle this problem. I have no hard feelings anyway as our weekend around oxford was well saife, spent with thre of the most funny guys ive met for a long time (speshly jeff). I have no regrets about smoking weed as i consider alchohol a worse "drug" than weed by far, but wait - drinkings cool right? I understand where the admins were coming from but maybe a little harsh? We did everything you asked of us after we were "banded" with no compromise whatsoever, yet i still have no hard feelings cos a few of them were well sound. Random admin quotes: "The deal was, we borrow your cat5 crossover until 5pm, but your not allowed on the premesis or i call the police" "Why do you want your cable back anyway? SO YOU CAN HAVE A LANDED AT YOUR TRAVEL-LODGE????" Speaking into radio: "Code RED! Code RED!"

Amen was caught skinning up in my hire car with Fragster, r1sk and snarc at landed on Saturday night.

I have no idea where the accusation of hotboxing came from. I was a little ped arranging colours going to landed only to lose 3 of the team before the tourney even started but s happens... socially the weekend was fin wicked.

I dont think anyone took the cs tourney seriously and most clans were using 2 or 3 mercs anyway... We had to collapse another clan in order to get a team together.

I don't think any of the CS games could really be classed as 'finals', as when everyone should have been playing second round matches half of the clans had to leave. Any one of ClanNew, ftp, Kaizen, sOnLan, SO19 and colours could have conceivably won from that stage.

Explain this? ClanNew and Kaizen own their respective finals so if there was anybody who would have won it overall it was one of those 2 teams, not as if it really mattered in the end. Wouldn't have liked to have played kaizen on a non WWCL server however. so19 played 1 lost 1 and joint winners of Landed :P

If the Uni security guard had seen you all smoking pot then 100 people would have been asked to kindly f* off the uni campus.

Thats why the landed admins ejected them.

Not because they get off on it.

Doesnt matter your personal view of smoking, weather its less harmful than drinking, everyone does it etc.

Its the uni and there security who would have closed the lan down.

Just to clarify, the four guys were caught skinning up in the hire car. What was about to happen after that is pure speculation. It had been brought to my attention that one of the four had been smoking earlier on the premises, but without proof and whether the car was about to be hotboxed or not I dont really care, they brought drugs onto university premises at an event I was responsible for. They were also stupid enough to roll up in a hire car that was _so_ badly parked it was drawing attention to itself, with the internal light on, less than 50m from a manned uni security post and 75m from a police station. They will not be attending any future events run by myself. This goes for anyone with drugs at any future Landed events. It is in the rules, and will be clarified more strongly before the next one.

If anyone wants to take this up with me then please feel free, I'm available in #brookes or at <http://www.landed-lan.co.uk> Otherwise I'd suggest everyone just lets it rest.

It was not a personal thing, some of the guys I got on well with and will miss them at future events.

With regards the thievery, most of it has turned up. We also have a good idea who one of the thieves was and he'll be in a whole world of hurt if it is ever proven.

Other than that it was a good event with a couple of problems which will be ironed out before the next one. Thanks to everyone who attended.

Simon what you did at the time was your call and I tried to mediate and sort things out. What annoys me is the bulls that has been spread afterwards. Landed admins posting on this site and elsewhere spreading rumours that Colours guys were trying to hotbox a car and ruin the event for everyone.

They had a teenth of weed and ONE guy was rolling a J. I parked that car at the event about half a metre from the curb... I really couldnt be arsed to park a hirecar I am not used to properly. Since then I hear certain admins have accused the driver of toking and driving. Ever seen wag the dog btw?

12 ppl who came with me will not be attending again...

Thanks Chris & Jim who worked their arses off for Landed II and received little more than criticism

I apologise for any comments from the admins which implied hotboxing.

While I realise it was you who parked the car, it was still not the most subtle of places to roll, which was the point I was trying to get across. At the time, I did wonder if the driver was drunk/stoned - until I realised it was you who was driving. I'm not aware of any accusations having been made otherwise, and if there have been then I apologise for those too.

Likewise, obviously the guys were not trying to ruin the event for everyone. The point is, if they had been caught by anyone other than me, they would have ruined this and any other future event run by any university society in the future, not just landed events. On a personal note, I was personally responsible for their actions while on campus; whatever view you think a university may hold, this one takes a dim view with regards drugs policies (especially involving outsiders and guests of the union)

I shall not apologise for my actions or decisions.

I've said it before, but I'd like to reiterate my thanks to you, John, for smoothing the whole situation over and acting as a mediator.

I hardly need express my personal thanks again to the rest of the crew, they know it's appreciated.

hmm. yes a bliding social event. shame about the 5-6hr network delay at the start and the state of the cs finals but that proolly wasnt the crews fault anyhow.

"Kappy's network card was stolen from out of his machine - we as good as know who did this, because the card he stole was put straight into his machine and needed replacing with one of ours (Ace's own personal network card), and they, nor their friends who also knew of it, will be attending anymore of the Landed events."

I dunno whos card i was - given - but if you are implying it was me whole stole anything then take a flying leap. After being told for the best part of 12hours it was my settings/cable/card that meant i just couldnt get on the network eventually it was sorted with new card/winXP. Since being back it wasnt the card as it clocks in 100mb fine on other lans but it doesnt really matter. Seing as i got under 2hrs of network access (and less CS) at the 36-hr event i was not best pleased, and was expressly given the card by a guy with blonde hair - sorry don't know names - which was then checked on my leaving whether i had stolen the card by another crew member. Hopefully im just misunderstanding here and someone else is being "referred to" but if not a LAN card is not really adequate reimbursement for a wasted weekend, cost of the clan itself and travel/food costs.

If I'm banned? It will be a shame seing as i didn't do anything but without AMeN what's the point? I doubt most of our table are eagerly anticipating the next dates seing as if we want a social event we can just go lan/pub in london. I also know/saw plenty of ppl smoking weed and am not about to deny my own innocence but a perm ban... gg sorry if it seems im slating all the staff, some of them were genuinley concered and tried, others simply couldnt give a toss.

Amrc - the network was working from Saturday early evening through to late Sunday. If you got under 2hrs of network access, that was due to your computer and not our network. Your '10/100 network card' was only 10mbit - the switch was picking it up as 10mbit, there is no way it was communicating as 10/100 - that's why you had such a slow connection to the CS servers. That's not our fault, although we spent a good deal of time trying to get you onto the network properly and improve your connection.

If you remember correctly, I sat down for an hour or so with your computer, I know Phle, Foosty and Kryton also spent time working on your machine. A copy of XP was installed and my network card was lent to you and most of the problems went away. Before you came you posted into the forums saying you might have network difficulties and we made it clear we would do our best to help you out. I feel we did. The decision of Kryton at the end to let you keep my card was something I hadn't been made aware of - that's why I checked at the end before you left, and if you remember correctly after I'd checked with him I told you all was fine.

Frankly, I'm pretty fed off that having let my admins spend a good deal of time looking over your computer you then turn around and say that the staff couldn't give a toss. If you arrive at a lan with a system that isn't working, then it's going to be a gamble as to whether or not the staff there can get it working. If they don't have time to spend all night working on it - is it really their fault?

If your network card is picking up 100mbit after the lan, then great for you, but it was only set to 10mbit while it was there. My shiny new card that you've now got is definitely 10/100 and always gave me good performance. If it's not compensation enough for your time then feel free to email me and I'll give you my address to send it back to me, I'd appreciate it, even if you don't.

For the record, you can get 10/100 cards with a BNC, however the bnc will only support 10mbit half duplex, I think that's where some people have got confused. They're pretty rare though and if yours does support it, then it's the first of it's kind I've ever seen.

With regard your final comment, I did apologise for the state of the network on the Saturday. It was a shame because it set the whole event back some. It was also largely unavoidable at this event, but will not happen at future landed events. If you interpreted my invitation as a 'desperate plea' then that's down to you.

Once again I'd ask everyone to settle down and leave it as it is. What's happened has happened, there is little point in generating ill-feeling. If you want to make a point, you'd be better off showing your contempt by not coming to future events than by slurring my staff on public forums, when you know damn well they did they're very best to help you out. I also note that not once did you thank at least me for my efforts, or for the network card that is probably sat in your computer right now.

"Frankly, I'm pretty fed off that having let my admins spend a good deal of time looking over your computer you then turn around and say that the staff couldn't give a toss."

"If you arrive at a lan with a system that isn't working, then it's going to be a gamble as to whether or not the staff there can get it working."

For whatever inexplicable reason by card didnt run 100mb at landed is way over my head. It clocked 100mb before but I didn't say it was your fault at all did i? My system itself is absolutely fine, 100fps running like a dream. It wasn't yours or my fault. Perhaps just some obscure conffliction or card weridness?

I do remember saying thx to just about everyone who tried to help especially Kryton, and coming back at the end to say thx again and wish you all the best.

For you to go off on a tangeant, accuse me of stealing your card, then say you don't want our "type" at your lans - what do you expect me to do? Turn around and buy you a pint? I didn't moan, petition the admins excessivley or anything. I sat patiently for the best part of 30 hours wondering why it didn't work when it has before at 100mb. I felt our table was no trouble to you at all and am puzzled as why you don't want people like Rav, Nighty or Dark0r at your lans.

"you then turn around and say that the staff couldn't give a toss." Didn't say all the admins if you read my post. It was a minority, but some just couldnt care less. Some would say "Wait here for 10 mins" and pop back 3 hours later, and it became a bit frustrating. "If they don't have time to spend all night working on it - is it really their fault?"

Also for about 5 hours each admin would come over and spend 20mins doing the same thing as the last one to my network settings. I tried to explain but wasnt listened to.

But, hey at least i got 2hrs of cs is the end!

Im not really that pleased about the card, glad i dont have to fork out for another one but its not that much. If it matters that much have it back.

"Once again I'd ask everyone to settle down and leave it as it is. What's happened has happened, there is little point in generating ill-feeling." Why? Just reel off slanderous comments and expect everyone to settle down? I feel this "ill-feeling" is pretty much justified from the people i went with. Perhaps it will be beneficial to your crew so you can improove for the next lan.

"slurring my staff on public forums, when you know damn well they did they're very best to help you out." Once again, most staff like Kryton were helpful and spent time with me. Others purely didnt give a toss. Pure and simple. The whole incident with the drugs and car was caused by bored ppl like AMeN being ignored when they asked for help, resulting in them going outside for a smoke.

I thought the lan was great in parts, especially socially, the venue is quality and NEARLY ALL of the staff were top-notch. Sort the network and communication issues for landed 3 and it should be a good one. Shame most people will be put off by their experiences last weekend, including myself.

Yeah great, cheers for the info and advice.

"dan" - from my experience 10mbit cards screw up when you plug them into 10/100 switches. In the past we've used a dedicated 10mbit switch for the souls on 10, this wasn't available this time though.

The whole 'Amen' incident happened quite a few hours after the network was 100% operational.

Sorry if the admins didn't spend enough time with you, like I said before, if you arrive at a lan with a system that isn't working, then it's going to be a gamble as to whether or not the staff there can get it working. Your card plainly wasn't setup or tested properly judging from your request for help in the forums. Your network settings didn't match ours the first time I came over and checked.

If you're not that pleased with it I'll have it back.

I'm afraid I'm not prepared to argue over pointless ifs and buts over different peoples versions of what happened.

I think your facts, timings and experiences are a little off from my opinions of what happened and I'm sure you feel the same about mine. If you fancy gracing us with your presence again then go for it, if not then hope you have a good one - might see you at different event.
