BWCSL Roundup

Posted by Fluke at 20:45 6/8/2002.

Ripper has written up the final installment in his coverage of the BarrysWorld Counter-Strike League:

".dNC. managed to hold onto their top spot during the final few weeks of the season, a surprise 13-10 loss came their way when they met a solid NS team, but with a crucial 13-11 win over 6k in the final week, the championship was theirs. VETS had a fairly solid season, while not turning heads in any major way; they guaranteed their spot in the top flight next season with an impressive 13-2 victory over SO19. An impressive season for erm:cs ended with a surprise 13-9 loss to SO19, meaning they finish 4th, although one must believe they'll put up a stronger challenge next season. The same goes for 6k, who are apparently soon to announce a new squad; their final week loss to .dNC. meant they'd have to settle for runners-up."

This time he focuses on on all the divisions to give a bit of coverage to the lesser known clans in the UK. The full league roundup can be found, here.

Slider 07:35 7/8/2002	High profiles uk cs sites, such as UKT should give lesser known cs clans more coverage. Maybe if these 'lesser' clans were shown that they were being a acknowledged, then it might spur them on to improve.

	All lower uk clans, and some tops ones are constantly slated by others. Maybe if they were encouraged by websites and top clans instead of critisized then the uk cs scene might actually improve. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Smittins 09:29 7/8/2002	well said nicholas :> [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

iron 13:00 7/8/2002	no Slider, the site shouldnt. However their should be more cs community websites, and/or sites which provide coverage for the bad clans like u say. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Smittins 13:20 7/8/2002	'lesser' sonds nicer than 'bad' ;) [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

blah 16:52 7/8/2002	if im not mistaken dNC had the noob division playing against NS, with only one or two regulars playing. ie. alex - leader in game quitting CS timo - in Hong Kong sev - holidays (they are the ones i know who were missing, could have been more.) i also doubt dNC put in any practice whatsoever for this game. btw dnc beat ns 24-0 on-lan. blah 17:17 7/8/2002	"NS have always been the "Oh, they're ok" type of clan this season. But following their BYCSL triumph, and an astonishing victory over .dNC.

	they will surely pose a threat to the top clans next season." tripe. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Ripper Rush! 17:20 7/8/2002	look they beat dnc, accept it [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
