Nocturne Secures New Sponsor

Posted by decrepit at 23:41 10/7/2002.

We have just received word from Paul Meakin, Nocturne's commercial advisor, that Nocturne have just found a new sponsor this time in the form of Gainward.

Nocturne, one of the UK's leading Counter Strike gaming team are very pleased to announcing a 12 month sponsorship contract from Gainward, the latest word in the PC graphics card market.

Gainward will be supplying Nocturne with their latest technology graphics cards, namely Gainward GeForce4 Ultra750 XP Golden Sample featuring nVidia's high-end GeForce4 Ti-4600 chipset. Wayne Tritton, Gainward Director of Sales and Marketing commented:

This looks very promising for clan Nocturne, and the full press release can be found here.

Paul 00:10 11/7/2002	Teppum.....sponsorship is part of a companies marketing raft and the tourney is one type of sponsorship...a team is another. If we put a good and professional proposition to Gainward, which we did, we may get sponsorshipm, which we have. I just do my job and supply the lads with what I can. Their job is to play and win (agreed we have work to do and a player or 2 to replace) but the commercial aspect of Nocturne is going well to plan. tbh I suggested they sponsor all the top teams. Hope this helps :) [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

BI33t 01:46 11/7/2002	From the "UK's top CS team" to now just "one of the UK's leading Counter Strike gaming team"(s). Oh dear, poor Paul's "press releases" (heh) are getting more and more conservative. Although I do have to somewhat admire how you manage to con these companies out of their products under the cover of 'sponsorship' (which lets face it is just pan handling) for a cs clan that haven't achieved anything, but then what qualifications do you need to work in marketing. Paul 11:23 11/7/2002	BI33t....I have never heard of you or met you so I will not dis you, but I take exception to your comments here. I have changed the "top UK team" to "one of the top UK teams" out of respect to i-es and other teams. You are making statements like "con these companies out of their products under the cover of 'sponsorship". What do you base this comment on? Were you involved with discussions with the Gainward Corporation with me? I don't think so. Also you say noc never achieved anything (eeerrr Korea!), this is not true either so based on this and other wild irresponsible comments, I would suggest most of your views are unfounded or basically incorrect. All I know is that companies want to sponsor Internet gaming teams, but they struggle due to the lack of commercial approach by most teams. I know this to be true due to teams that have approached me and other companies I know for sponsorship. Most teams have no idea, it's just ask for some kit and hope they get it....not the pro way to approach a corporate You also question my marketing skills! Why? Do you know me? Not sure if you work or not, but I am proud to have built 2 successful UK brands through hard work and dedication (These achievements are qualifications enough), this is the same dedication that I am showing nocturne. Flames are fine and fun, but lets not get to personal! 	j0nb0y 12:29 11/7/2002	If it helps Paul, when I was leader of 4K/IeS every time we got anything cool be it sponsorship or media coverage, we used to get hammered by the UK CS monkeys if we lost any matches. End of the day the sponsorship has nothing to do with the playing of CS, and most sponsors don't actually know or care how well their team does as long as they keep to an approximate target. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

	Bl33t 15:55 11/7/2002	You changed it because you knew that by keeping "the top UK team" you would be telling an even bigger lie now than you were then, that and the negative responce such an arrogant statement received the last time. I use the term conning as in order to get a company to give you any of their products free I would expect them to be wanting publicity and advertising in return. Nocturne have the advertising power of the inside of my shed door. Hearing that they've 'donated' five or six cards to a clan who have as much chance as winning a cpl event as Wales have the world cup isn't going to make me rush out to track down a "Gainward" (who?) video card.

I never questioned your marketing skills, indeed you must talk bulls with the best of them. Instead I was refering to the Gainward marketing department, if indeed such a department exists.

That last post wasn't very professional at all Paul, any donators looking on might think you're just some clueless schmuck trying to play PR manager, which of course we know you aren't. I mean you must have made some serious money in representing those previous "UK brands" to be able to drop everything and follow your dream of managing some computer game nerds. Say what you want about him, but he is fin funny. Nice scoop on figuring out who bl33t is there khaos, you should be a UKT newsie. But you could have just asked any irish person, they knew this a year ago :P Speaking of a year ago, its pretty amusing how people's views of the past change to suit their present situations. despite a very large amount of the community believing Aims cheated nobody could even get a remotely dodgy demo of him (a nice one like ui got of Alvin would have lovely wouldn't it) and indeed he was picked for the UK team, although i don't recall people in the UK team accusing him once he was selected (sound familiar?). Now he is clearly a cheater though. Also, i do remember him giving 4K a good spanking, but that could just be MY selective memory.

Lets see....cause he never recorded demos of himself. And the cheat protection methods are so different now, compared to back then. Ive spoken to some of his own team m8's who sat there watching him play when they're dead and just thinking "that's fing bollox".

As we all know now, on-line means f-all in counter-strike. As Aims refused an expenses paid trip to the UK to play on lan, and the fact he's probably never played on lan in his life proves that he means f all to CS.

I was very upset over that, I went all the way over to London to have a good weekend with a few mates and you went and spanked my team (i was head cheerleader you know). If dNC hadn't counter-spanked you I would have topped myself.

Back to the #4 topic, I'm well aware of all his demo & PB avoiding antics. you are preaching to the wrong person, cos eh, i always thought he was a dirty cheat. (Although a lot of people didn't, or at least looked the other way). My point was more about the two-facedness and/or sickening arse-licking (man, if i'm licking #4s arse, what the f are the rest of the people here doing... anal irrigation?) of a lot of people on this thread.
