Intel Masters - Results

Posted by Myers at 23:48 21/12/2002.

I have just returned from the internetless Intel Masters tournament. The results from the semi-finals are as follows:

- Infinity-eSports 13 - 0 Does Not Compute
- ONE vs omg! Clan One default victory due to Gideon needing medical treatment and omg! not being able to field a team.

Final results

- Infinity-eSports 13 - 1 ClanONE

I'll write a full report on the event tomorrow including everything that happened. Needless to say Infinity-eSports were much better prepared on the custom science map than ClanONE were.

vip Online Multiplayer Gaming 14:28 22/12/2002	Well, I could have played the game, I wasnt having any fits or anything. Was just the fact the admin said we had time to get the stuff beyond a shadow of a doubt, then changed his mind 15mins later. His complete insistence we would have had time was the reason they left to get it.

Reasons we are dissapointed

1) I e-mailed the admins prior to the event letting them know I was diabetic and needed to plan my days etc. for safety's sake so I needed to know what was the latest possible time the event would finish. They replied saying that by 2.30 the CS tournament would be finished and there would be a few hour break after that to get anything I needed if I got to the final.

So I planned for this, yet it still wasn't a big deal when it started running late since it was only 40mins to Sumit's house for what I needed to continue during the extra 4 or so hours being projected.

2) After our game we explained to the admin what we needed to do, i.e. get me my stuff. We explained to them we had 2 options (a) We could stay and play the game right then, and one of us could go and get the stuff after we had finished. (b) We could go and get the stuff right then and be back by the time dNC vs i-es was finished since games were taking on average over an hour to play.

The head admin told us we could go right then and play our game after dNC vs i-es was finished, so naturally we took his word, Sumit and Alex left straight away in the knowledge we were playing our game and the admin was aware of the whole situation.

So me, Bror, Sarge and Craig were sitting chatting in the games area while the admins rounded up dNC and i-es around 6.25. Then the head admin (same guy who talked to Alex and Sumit) comes over and says "We decided to play your game now on the main stage". We said to him "We only have 4 players now, you just told 2 of ours they could go get some medicine and we would be playing after the other semi".

First it seemed like he was true to his word, he said "Just set up your equipment now so we can work out any bugs on the computers" which we thought was fair enough. As soon as we got up to the new area though he started hounding us to get our players in saying that they had changed their mind and we HAD to play in 10mins of forfeit.

We wouldn't have minded but Sumit and Alex by this stage were at the house and would take another 20mins to return leaving us with no chance of fielding our team. We were annoyed since the admin had told us himself we could play the game after dNC vs i-es which Alex and Sumit were on schedule to be back in time for the end of that game.

So as a consolation the head admin says at least we will have a 3rd-4th playoff with dNC, which we were at least happy with the consolation of playing another game vs a great team. So Sumit and Alex arrive back just as dNC vs i-es has finished, ready for the 3rd-4th place playoff, and more than a little disappointed that the admin has gone back on his word, when he changed his mind again and decides they won't go through with the playoff and will just split our prize down the middle.

Thanks to ONE for agreeing to play MR7 so we could play our game after the i-es v dNC game, which wasnt to be after the head admin changed his mind.

Thanks to DK especially as an admin we found throughout to know exactly what hes doing and in touch with what gamers want and need.

Although we were gutted at the end, we still had an absolutly classic day, really had a great time, science museum was really nice place and the staff was very helpful. All the other clans were really nice, erm.cs, Xs & SiN, dNC, N@S, FELLA, UK girls, Destroyer especially since those are the ones I spoke to. And thanks to whoever sorted the food becuase it was well nice.

Tournament was fed up, it all went downhill after the "unlimited" supply of rebull ran out in the first 10minutes tbh. I-es were once again the most prepared clan, all the admins were very helpful except from the one's connected with intel. Intel said at the beginning its a simple PR stunt, and they dont give a f about the players, they did what they planned to do, so a victory for Intel 🇬🇧:o Lets hope they dont do another one because they will just get everyones hopes up again and f everyone over again making them go home poorer and more depressed than they were to start off with, I wouldnyt do it again for the prize money they are offering, with the amount of time you have to put into it and the amount of grief they give you, its just not worth it. wp Intel

I think if Intel or whoever ran this tournament try to do it again, I think all the clans should get together and boycott it on ethical grounds. Guys,

The OMG thing: I found out about this just as the semis were about to be played. My tourney guy told me that one of the OMG guys had run out of the strips you need to test blood (which are very important) and was not feeling fine.

There was nothing he could say except for: "Go and get your medicine".

I am sorry that the OMG clan members did not get back in time and were unable to play the semis. I had a chat with the remaining OMG blokes and they said they understood and offered to default. I accepted this offer - there was little choice really.

The event itself: Yes we have PC problems and this combined with the delay caused by having to restart the tourney caused the kerfuffle. Apologies for that.

All of the clan members that stayed for the final LOVED it, even the Girls who would have been right to be upset at missing out at playing altogether!

However, the event was on the BBC news in the evening and several times on CNN Worldwide. It has really done a lot to promote e-sports to the public and making it more acceptable. Slagging it off in public is shooting yourselves in the foot.

At the end of the day, my primary aim was not to have happy gamers at the end of the event, it was to create awareness of e-sports in the public mind. This I achieved.

If I wanted happy CS'ers I would have hired a huge hall and had models and booth babes, more beers and other goodies. It would have cost me a tenth of the price but ultimately would have been useless.

If you have constructive comments, please email them to me.

Thanks to those who stayed and enjoyed the finals!
AWESOME!

BTW:

Running events that are designed to keep the gamers and gaming fans very happy is the job of the CPL, they do this excellently and this is why we support them!

I would have loved it for all of the gamers to come out smiling, but some didn't. It is a shame and if you would like another tourney, please email me with ideas!

Thanks again,

I cant be arsed to say it over and over cause people are obviously not listening. I care very little for not playing in the semis and goin to help a friend, but we were bullsted at and fed over

1. We were promised by numerous admins we would play ONE when we got back, we had a lot of time they said, like there was not a single issue.

2. Nick Knuffer the intel guy, was rung by sumit at around 6:25pm to find out the situation. He chose to promise to call back in 1 minute, and simply turned his phone off and never called back so we couldn't get to him.

3. first u call off our semi, then, what really takes the fing p, is you call off the 3rd place playoff. I had to rush back down from acton to get back to the flipping lan only to be done over again. All because the main intel man couldnt be arsed to keep his word. Gideon could of played the ONE match if we didnt have one straight after, and it turned out we wouldnt of had it.

4. You have put up an advert for AMD. The pc's crashed, overheated, drivers weren't installed. tourney was restarted.

The BBC and CNN networks filmed a perfectly run final, but didnt see the bollocks going on backstage, where most of the gamers were playing. At the end of the day, the majority of people were right about the impression they got: 'they dont give a single s about gamers, but care about selling as many chips as they can and as many radon cards'. Nick(intel) had atitude problems. Are you looking to get a higher position if you show your superiors you can run an event properly? Dunno maybe ur after a promotion but I thought you were a rude obnoxious bullster who should be slid through the mud.

How about you call up Sujoy from VGA, or BT with regards to GDOC, and ask them how to run a lan tournament, im sure after saturday you'll be able to sell a couple of cards and cpu's so you can afford the 10 hour phone bill.

I think you all should lay off Intel a bit.

Qttec is the one to blame for not having enough coolage for the cpu's.

After speakling to the Intel guys over a few beers we learnt actually how much time and effort intel had put into the event.

I for one would love this event to take place next year so stop slagging it off, Im sure the first CPL LAN never went very smoothly.

They said they will learn from the mistakes so lets wait and see.

m0 still stinks btw.

Thanks Havors,

M0rph, I understand that you are frustrated and I am UBER-upset that the PC problems caused the delay and the consequential problems.

Again, all I can do to you is apologies, it was a tough call, but I reckon getting 8 million people understanding that e-sports is cool on the 6 O'clock news was worth it.

Again, all I can do is apologise on behalf of the PC company. Trust me I am fuming and very angry about the situation, so I understand completely that you are too.

yeh reading the reasons why it had to be played for a certain time makes me less mad at what happened, if you had told us we would have understood, in the end our friends health obviously came first afterall there are (hopefully) gonna be alot more lans after this events publicity right nick :D Also the admins were helpful in a really sticky situation with the pcs, and did a g00d job. The one suggestion i might have is try and get a greater input from gamers about gaming... look at wcg, sujoy is a known gamer and his knowlage most certainly helped run a highly sucesful event!. omg! craig Online Multiplayer Gaming 16:36 23/12/2002	it seemed a well organised event at first, and generally it was, if it hadnt been for all the pcs probs it woulda hvae been perfect, cos it was only them that let the event down really, when they were running they were totally fine and the network was fine aswell. So hopefully this type of event will be run again, like nick says it must have given massive exposure to the game and that can only be good. There were things at GDOC that coulda been done much better, but both these events are the first of there kind and the more of them the better for the gamers in this country. so gl for next time, hopefully we will be invited again. plz tho 1 thing, try and limit the free drinks on offer i was fin sick on 4 different forms of transport yesterday and have still been enjoying my hangover at work today :/ [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

You must have had alot of cricicism and it was a very hectic weekend but dont forget all the good publicity the event got on CNN other media. The people that stayed till the end enjoyed it and you im sure you got compliments at the end of the event by a number of people.

Mistakes that were made once wont be made again, you know for a fact that the next possible event will be great with all the feedback you already have and will be getting. I wouldnt mind helping out for the next tourny and give you some tips and hints on the cs side of things and general stuff ie. set up and preparation.

Think toby could tell you alot about the general stuff as we talked about it and share the same opinions.

Intel Masters - Results

Posted by Myers at 23:48 21/12/2002.

I have just returned from the internetless Intel Masters tournament. The results from the semi-finals are as follows:

- Infinity-eSports 13 - 0 Does Not Compute
- ONE vs omg! Clan One default victory due to Gideon needing medical treatment and omg! not being able to field a team.

Final results

- Infinity-eSports 13 - 1 ClanONE

I'll write a full report on the event tomorrow including everything that happened. Needless to say Infinity-eSports were much better prepared on the custom science map than ClanONE were.

Just before our semi final vs. ONE, Gideon wasn't feeling too hot, and needed his blood strips otherwise he would not of known how much insulin to take as he's diabetic. The admins said they'd hold the semi, put i-es v dnc first, and then us v one.

i got the car and rushed back back to vip's house with vip to pick up the medicine and rushed back to get it to him on time. We arrive... admin: sorry u had to forfeit, ONE go through coz u fed off.... they promised to hold and told us to go get medicine, we arrive and that's it. 5 minutes go by... no 3rd place play off v dnc because they need to make a spectacle of the CS final and don't have 5 PC's to play on even tho they had approximately 25 odd upstairs.

I was close to smacking the intel man, nick knupper or whatever his name is. totally got fed over, we didn't even get a chance to get a proper 3rd place prize, in our form I think we would of given ONE a close game at least and then, in my honest opinion, beaten dnc for third spot. But there you go.

tourney started off so promisingly, till the PC's began crashing, sound disappearing. nothing like that happened in our ui game but that musta been about 8 hours into the tourney. This has been, not an advert for intel, but ironically, will end up boosting amd sales.

ps. radon 9700 = s and overheats if u stand near it m0rph speaks the truth, what else ped us Off was jason said he could manage to sit through 1 game but we knew we had the semi then either the final/3+4 playoff, so we knew we had to go there and then otherwise he would have serious problems. When we rushed back we were told there was NO 3/4 so we only would have had to play 1 match which if we lost we could go home and get him the stuff, or if we won we would have been able to go home while the other semi was being done... they decieved us loads but his health comes first. He didnt need medical attention or anything, he just looked really sleepy and said he was running really low on strips to test his blood sugar (just as important as the insulin itself). Well played too the clans in the most awful tournament ever!

	Ti MuffinMan 12:38 22/12/2002	It was just as bad as a specators point of view. I was really looking foward to watching cs game on a massive imax cinema screen. However this was not to be and ended up seeing about 10 minutes cs per hour "show" slot. Usually we got to see clans warming up which generally consisted of tking. The evening was more fun however with free food such as lumbs of chicken and beef being passed around as well as some beer etc. The final was dissapointing. Looked like a tactical game of cs on office. I-es had clearly learn't the map big stylee and ONE hadn't. Its a shame really cos ONE had quite a few chances as T's, at least 3 - 5 good chances to win rounds. If they had got those then you never know what might happen. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
