ONE keep their finger on the pulse

Posted by Hotshot at 19:24 1/9/2003.

Ive just received word from Iccy of clanONE that the proposed deal with #pulsegaming has just been finalised allowing the clan access to new facilities and opportunities previously unavailable to them. Pulsegaming had this to say:

clanONE have proved to us over the last couple of months that they have the ability to enjoy the game, and at the same time show dedication and commitment, a rare commodity in the current gaming scene. We hope to facilitate clanONE's further development by providing invaluable assistance and support in the areas of travel expenses, hardware, hosting and server needs. It is a great opportunity for clanONE to take advantage of our resources, going far beyond standard sponsorship offerings.

A firm and expansive statement there with some hefty promises from a cash point of view. Following on from the recent absorption of disturbed into the nVidia fold and the subsequent sponsorship, the arrival of cash backing for another top UK clan can mean only good things. I caught a word with Iccy himself to clarify things further.

ONE|Iccy - This partnership with pulsegaming will help secure ONE's ability to travel to LAN events and bootcamps, also the servers they provide for both the CS and DoD teams have proved invaluable tools for practices and games. The sponsorship also covers things like hardware, so that if a member needs an upgrade to their PC then it is no longer out of financial reach.

clanONE will be bootcamping at the Global Gaming Arena in Birmingham from today until Wednesday, one would assume in preparation for WCG.

Just FYI.....

After much feedback and trials we have decided to run only 4 servers per physical machine.

We believe that this gives us ample overheads in both CPU useage and ram to accomodate 4 full 14 or 16 player games without lag or choke, while at the same time providing good registry.
