ClanONE In PCGamer

Posted by Myers at 10:32 8/4/2003.

Today my subscription copy of PCGamer arrived and flicking to the online gaming section I saw that Matt (ONE|Iccy) Milhench had written into the 'Best at...' column on behalf of ClanOne. The brief interview asks questions regarding the team's motivation, reasons why they're better than the average player, best CS map and other games the clan is looking forward to.

Here's a snippet:

PCG - What's the most exciting thing about CS in the UK today?

Iccy - I'd have to say it's the increasing interesting being shown from big-name companies to sponsor and run events. Names like Intel and Samsung are helping CS become more recognised as a sport in the UK.

On the same page in 'Letters from the Front Line' Zommy from 4K has reported on the Intel Masters competition from a RTCW point of view. One interesting thing to note is right at the bottom he says

"The Intel Masters will certainly be staged again in the future. Expect 4Kings to be there to defend our title!"
