Myers Saviour of UKT UKTerrorist 11:50 11/5/2003	maybe if one did stick with the same team for a long period of time they would be the best, instead of the inconsistancy in results we get. The SWE players are better simply because they can play more and have had better internet connections. [Comment: Report IP: Logged] kirium 11:57 11/5/2003	can you stop editing my posts please. and who are you to say if they have had the same core team they may have done better, it really doenst take long for a team to gel which is probably how eoL won (cant remember what they won) some big tourney within only like 2weeks of their formation. if omg! believe that m0rph is a better player then geordie omg! will only get stronger. i never believe that clan hopping ruins how well a team does and neither do the swedes im guessing. [Comment: Report IP: Logged] Pharcy3 12:09 11/5/2003	eolithic do that for most competitions tho - they do 2 weeks of intensive training, and rework tactics every time. [Comment: Report IP: Logged] nerf Clan ONE 12:12 11/5/2003	But SK and 3D have had the same core members for a long time. Heaton, Potti and Ahl go back to NiP days, and Bullseye, Rambo and Ksharp were in the X3 team. So yes sticking together for a long time can reap benefits, as Myers correctly pointed out imo. It isn't essential - look at eoL and [9].esu - but I do think there are more advantages than disadvantages to it. [Comment: Report IP: Logged] kirium 12:23 11/5/2003	nerf you pointed out 3 palyers from SK and 3 players from 3D who have been there since the start... well i think myers posted in reference to omg!...where you have vip,craig,sarge (and now m0rph) who have been there since the start pretty much. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
