i kinda agree with what ppl say, mix teams should be the last ones to be considered and to fill the empty slots cos must be quite annoying for clans who honestly want to improve as a team and to play at lans to see mix teams who are just going for a day out and dont really care where they come.

id like to know the reason why clones for example were considered over loads of the proper clans who applied

NO so19 got banned coz they didnt turn up, and thats the reason they folded coz the players who said they would come and had "better things to do" stopped playing. So.. me tmc and xen (who actually want to lan) make a new clan and go on playing cs. TBH i wanna play at ukt and we will turn up... seeing as the only memebers who couldnt go b4 was spherical and lewis..... section7 is a totally different clan to so19 anyway.

myers just hates me, its personal, its not because of the clans, its me, no excuse though. i mean come on, its not like were not worth giving us a try, i mean what exactly is his problem ? have i ever cheated ? no have i ever argued with him or anything? no. its just pathetic, he does this to me all the time, even 3 years ago in the cpl qualifiers, we didnt get through to be picked even though we passed with flying colours. so we had to go all the way up to preston just to qualify, and we were a london lan clan. and then what? We folded LCA, and gave 4k a scare, back then, but why cant it happen again ? [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

		Established players, established team, with high aim and expectations = winner. anyway dev seeing as we turned up to ukt2 coz myers said sum1 will prolly drop and we sat around all day to the finals.. i think that pretty much show's our dedication :||

And i rewarded that dedication with a gaurunteed place at UKT3. To which so19 failed to show up for costing the event £75.

With section 7 they are one of the first teams on the reserve list so it's still likely they will get in. I have nothing against them except they did seem to be a fairly new team and i wanted them to perhaps establish themselves a bit better first. Infact I quite like most of their players, very sound guys. It's not like section 7 were the first team to sign up either, they were the 18th. The top 5 or so teams got accepted.

Pro-Gamer will get accepted at every UKT LAN because I know they will turn up. At first UKT LAN they turned up with around 12 hours notice and no matter how badly they lose or get beaten etc, they will be at the next one. So far they have always maintained the same 'core' team more so than some of the 'proper' teams.

maybe for next ukt,
there should be a box with like "why should you be at ukt", "what is the aim of your team", "why do you want to go to UKT"
and things (?)
Maybe then it would give a more accurate description of the teams

hmm i really like that idea silicon, we will be implementing that at the next event.

Not sure what happened with Clones/Puk-Kai. Puk-Kai did not sign up for this event, if they had they would have been accepted instead of clones.

Would publishing the reserve team list really help considering how much flame the actual list got?..it would just give way to more flaming. So i will not announce it.

The sad fact of the matter is that when you have 57 teams applying for 28 places...there are going to be problems when over half of them are not picked.

End of the day the purpose of the ukt LAN's was for the competition at the end so all those clans that have points in the standings who still have a chance of getting to the end competition should get first refusal and rightly so THEN and only then should other teams be chosen.
The one problem myers has got is am sure there are a few relatively unknown clans out there who could beat a fair few of the teams going but how will he ever get to know this? Well you either go to other events and win something to get your name known or you do well online thats the only way hes gona get to hear about you.

Maybe for next events after the teams that have points and can still go to the end competition have been asked wether they are attending maybe a nice rotation of the unknown clans, let them all get a chance otherwise it will happen again where we see the same 30 teams going every month. Remember the next Mangiacapra, Harriman are out there waiting to be found, lets find them and get down to the business of toppling 4k cos the Kings wont become world beaters untill we as a UK cs scene can seriously give them something to worry about? i mean can anyone tell me the last time a uk team beat 4kings in a LAN event? would be intresting to know.

I know what its like to not be accepted to a ukt lan.. it aint the end of the world lads - theres always next time.

Remeber that there was a poll asking weather there should be online qualifers or a 2 day event? The majority spoke and said a 2 day event was preferable. Online qualifyers would probably have allowed more clans to compete but thats not what most of us wanted. Why whinge?
