Team UK - Squad Announcement

Posted by Ripper at 17:50 24/3/2003.

Leading upto the announcement of the Nations Cup captains Obi and myself had been preparing just incase we were selected, and just incase the UK had to go through the qualifiers. We spent all last week watching many demos of some of the UK's finest and we'll continue to do so up until late tonight.

Fortunately, the UK will head straight into the group phases with the first match scheduled to take place in the week beginning 14th April. But needless to say we still intend to get the team ready and as such we'll be announcing the squad Wednesday night so they can begin their practice for the opening game. Here's the details of the squad announcement:

- Date: Wednesday 26th March
- Time: 21:00
- Channel: #team-uk.cs
- Extra Info: It'll be an 8 man squad, feature no more than 2 players from any one clan and won't include any 4K players.

So be there Wednesday night and get ready to flame flame flame.

DArtagnan Infinity-eSports 18:18 24/3/2003	no it isnt craig, hence the time the uk team did well was when the whole of i-es was picked, so that everygame 2 of them would be able to play. It was jonny who came up with these only picking 2 from each for the squad, and last time we saw that some of the best werent available to play, so ended up using much weaker players, when other players from the top teams would have been available..... [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
	DArtagnan Infinity-eSports 18:31 24/3/2003	Are the captains actually gonna speak to each player before hand to actually check they want to play, and are prepared to practice? cause i know some1 who's likely to be a definite pick who wont be assed to play for uk team, let alone practice. 	Weebull 19:04 24/3/2003	A national team may never have more than 2 members of the same active CS clan playing at the same time. For this rule players are considered to still be members of any clan they've been a member of (no matter how briefly) after 30 September 2002, and any clan that was active after that date is still considered to be an active clan. National captains are expected to know the full clan history of any player they wish to field; not knowing it will not be an excuse to break this rule. If any doubt is possible about the membership of a certain player in a certain clan (e.g. because of a try-out) then the captain must always get permission from the supervisor before using that player. There is no limit on how many members of the same clan can be registered with a national team. That's the player rule by the way. Sounds really messed up to me, especially that "September 2002" bit. Sounds like every clan that has had a player play for them since then has to count them as a member. :s [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

Rhyzz Nocturne 22:21 24/3/2003	sorry but with no Liquid or lil the team has already failed. Marc is the best in-game caller there is, and the team wont perform without him. Other than that, the only certaintys to the team are Grag (DArt) and sumit (vip). 2 Best players UK has to offer along side Marc and Stu, and if there not picked then its another prime example of how pathetic the UK is. keith i love you. Please dont put any of these unknown players in like shaq etc, they may be good but they haven't the experience needed to beat the top guys...this level of competition comes down to many 1v1's, and they will simply get outplayed over and over....and im being nice here, i seriously think the UK team is laid out in front of the captain for many years to come.

GL everyone.

You say don't pick unknowns but then suggest Valkyr, personally i know the guy and was in the same team as him at i10. I do rate him and he is fairly young so time is on his side. Equally as many people have heard of shaq than those who have heard of Valkyr.

I just dont think its a good idea to give people a chance when theres perfectly good, proven players available.

The UK team is for the best, not to give unknowns a chance to play against Heaton.

ive said that many times, and yet Demo gets picked...what a glorious country and community we have!

I did disagree with the Demo selection but then again i would argue that Arak and Shaq are better players than him. The thing is Rhyzz also that these 'proven' players you speak of such as the 4K guys don't want to put the time and effort in because of other commitments.

Sometimes you have to take chances. Sometimes they work, sometimes they dont.

Ok paul, if we look at this.

My team: Keiju, Righteous, m0rph, DArtagnan, bom, shaq, arak, mebe someone from Barcodes, Messiah or Toomy.

Yours: Dart, Sumit, m0rph, Khaos, Annum, Messiah, Sarge, Keiju, Righteous.

We pretty much agree on 3 OMG! players. We both hve keiju and righteous in the team. + me picking Mess or Toomy just leaves us with 2 differences. You pick Khaos and Annum me shaq and arak. I believe that Arak is a quality player and would fit better in the 'team' than Annum, and as for Shaq>Khaos that is just personal choice. Different captains would pick different teams.

Paul's right. Marc and Stu are the top 2 really...without them we don't stand much chance of getting far in the tournament. However it is for fun and it is a good platform to put young players up to see what they can do.

I think the whole Demo fiasco was a mistake and he may have played badly because of all the flames going around about the surprise selection but in the end if he was the player that some people were saying he is then he should have been able to put it out of mind and played to his best and used it to show the UK how he can play.

I actually would go with Paul as well in saying Joe should be given a chance, I know my little mole would shine in a clan war vs good opposition and rise to the occasion rather than flounder like a dying trout a la Demo style =[

Rhyzz Nocturne 22:40 24/3/2003	lol i like the 'team' part surrounding Annum. Mikes a class player and had like 30+ frags against mouz in a pcw a while ago...lets see any lastchance player pull that off, even when there on form. Also, Khaos is a little contraversial, not alot of people have experienced his play first hand and got to play with him properly within a team, but it is true that everyone moans about his 'team play' but nevertheless hes one of the best players in the UK and can crush anyone 1v1, 3v1, or 5v1... I just dont see the point in putting in unknowns when we have already discovered our best players. If unknowns were really that good, they would be recruited into a good team. The UK team isnt for starting a players cs career, its there to top them off.	[Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Dev theb0g 22:40 24/3/2003	point proven really. Mike has excellant individual ability and is one of the best no doubt, but his lack of ability to work with a team makes him a choice that i'd stay away from. That and the fact he doesnt even want to be involved.	[Comment: Report IP: Logged]

Team UK - Squad Announcement

Posted by Ripper at 17:50 24/3/2003.

Leading upto the announcement of the Nations Cup captains Obi and myself had been preparing just incase we were selected, and just incase the UK had to go through the qualifiers. We spent all last week watching many demos of some of the UK's finest and we'll continue to do so up until late tonight.

Fortunately, the UK will head straight into the group phases with the first match scheduled to take place in the week beginning 14th April. But needless to say we still intend to get the team ready and as such we'll be announcing the squad Wednesday night so they can begin their practice for the opening game. Here's the details of the squad announcement:

- Date: Wednesday 26th March
- Time: 21:00
- Channel: #team-uk.cs
- Extra Info: It'll be an 8 man squad, feature no more than 2 players from any one clan and won't include any 4K players.

So be there Wednesday night and get ready to flame flame flame.

With so many good proven players its not going to be an easy job to please everyone with the uk team selection. I agree with rhyzz that the team should be the best we have to offer, not just raw ability and talent but have the experience necessary to play on the top stage. It'll be interesting to see regardless the line up how well the uk squad players mix as I can see from quite a few of the names mentioned are natural game leaders.

I dont think they've updated the rules from the last cbnations yet, cause that date was 6 months ago. Near the start of the last cbnations. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
Myers Saviour of UKT UKTerrorist 12:24 25/3/2003	A national team may never have more than 2 members of the same active CS clan playing at the same time. For this rule players are considered to still be members of any clan they've been a member of (no matter how briefly) after 30

September 2002, and any clan that was active after that date is still considered to be an active clan. National captains are expected to know the full clan history of any player they wish to field; not knowing it will not be an excuse to break this rule. If any doubt is possible about the membership of a certain player in a certain clan (e.g. because of a try-out) then the captain must always get permission from the supervisor before using that player. There is no limit on how many members of the same clan can be registered with a national team.

Greg looking at that it does seem like ur classed as both ClanONE, omg! even 4k...

Team UK - Squad Announcement

Posted by Ripper at 17:50 24/3/2003.

Leading upto the announcement of the Nations Cup captains Obi and myself had been preparing just incase we were selected, and just incase the UK had to go through the qualifiers. We spent all last week watching many demos of some of the UK's finest and we'll continue to do so up until late tonight.

Fortunately, the UK will head straight into the group phases with the first match scheduled to take place in the week beginning 14th April. But needless to say we still intend to get the team ready and as such we'll be announcing the squad Wednesday night so they can begin their practice for the opening game. Here's the details of the squad announcement:

- Date: Wednesday 26th March
- Time: 21:00
- Channel: #team-uk.cs
- Extra Info: It'll be an 8 man squad, feature no more than 2 players from any one clan and won't include any 4K players.

So be there Wednesday night and get ready to flame flame flame.

I think they're trying to say madspunk that the players listed from lc as possible members of the team are not experienced enough at the highest level of CS to be considered right now. Dunno whether I agree with it or not but that's my interpretation of what the person has said.

Will be interesting to see if the team that is selected reflects public opinion or whether it is going to contain several controversial selections. I also hope that the "player must be a member of the clan before such and such a date issue" will be resolved.

It seems a little ambiguous and I think CB need to get someone who can actually speak fluent English and someone who also understands the English language to the extent that they can formulate rules that make clear sense, on board for the future.

Madspunk, i mean we have 8 or 9 mproven players and dont really need the efforts of lastchance players, even if they are good. They haven't the experience needed for an international level team, and i think they wouldn't be able to win 1v1's vs the worlds best.

harsh but i think its silly to let unknowns play in the UK team. simple as that Arak and Stan have been around a long time though. Arak was pimped into dOh then LR and then UKLA. Stan headed up a clan called Fusion before going onto #numbers, both played for m4 that beat 4k in CPL quals. Although things have changed since then and European competitions and pcw's are now the norm, I don't think their skill or experience is lacking. It's their fed up NTL that's as unpredictable as Arak settling in a clan ;) As I've said, the UK has more skilled and well known and respected players than the UK can field. People will be left out who are good enough, so the lesser known unproven skilled players will just have to keep going and earn that 1337 space next time. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

I declare "National Everyone Hat'es Mat for whatever he does / says" year. People need to get the f off his case because it's just pathetic...the community is full of enough people that shout off their mouths about any little thing. Mat gets it daily, I've seen the logs he's shown me of abuse certain individuals send and the posts on most of the forums / threads against him. You may not like to hear it Keith but Mat is a wicked friend and a fing good CS player.

Like it or not Mat is easily UK standard and I couldn't give a f if people flame me for saying it. Mat is a friend and the abuse he gets is outrageous, and for what? So he may have been a prick to some people in the past and people hold a few bad LAN performances against him and maintain that he configs etc online. Well it's bulls because I have played at his house and looked at his cfgs at many an i-Series LAN and he's just as good there as at home. Everyone give him a break, Mat doesn't deserve this s.
