I-eS|m0rph moves to 4Kings

Posted by Protex at 23:25 26/8/2003.

In what has been a busy summer transfer season it seems the fun and games have not yet ended. With the recent return of Infinity-eSports and the possibilities of another UK team to take on the world it seems immediate hopes are to be dashed.

The news that m0rph is to join 4Kings will create a few ripples here and there but it does mean they have a full lineup for the upcoming WCG Qualifiers. Infinity-eSports will undoubtedly feel hard done by, time will tell how they move on from this and whether they do choose to attend UKT-X and the WCG Qualifiers.

Good Luck to I-eS and 4K.

I-eS|m0rph moves to 4Kings

Posted by Protex at 23:25 26/8/2003.

In what has been a busy summer transfer season it seems the fun and games have not yet ended. With the recent return of Infinity-eSports and the possibilities of another UK team to take on the world it seems immediate hopes are to be dashed.

The news that m0rph is to join 4Kings will create a few ripples here and there but it does mean they have a full lineup for the upcoming WCG Qualifiers. Good Luck to I-eS and 4K.

TecwynWhittock 00:49 27/8/2003	seems different with the top foreign clans tho, many more decent players to go round, multiple clans on a similar level. as someone said before (cba looking back to glean a quote) over here its a case of as soon as anyone gets near 4K or looks like they might, the best players go to em. good 4K management I spose, but no good for the brits mentality of preferring the underdog. And if that doesn't work head from all the 4K men. Oh and bob...just wanted to mention his name cos since he's not in a high profile clan he never gets talked about anymore...but he is still the pinnacle of intelligent cs. intelligent cs....is that an oxymoron? You imply magaluf is budget just because ryan air and easyjet go there :) there are some actually pretty nice places to stay which will set u back.

I-eS|m0rph moves to 4Kings

Posted by Protex at 23:25 26/8/2003.

In what has been a busy summer transfer season it seems the fun and games have not yet ended. With the recent return of Infinity-eSports and the possibilities of another UK team to take on the world it seems immediate hopes are to be dashed.

The news that m0rph is to join 4Kings will create a few ripples here and there but it does mean they have a full lineup for the upcoming WCG Qualifiers. Infinity-eSports will undoubtedly feel hard done by, time will tell how they move on from this and whether they do choose to attend UKT-X and the WCG Qualifiers.

Good Luck to I-eS and 4K.

I-eS|m0rph moves to 4Kings

Posted by Protex at 23:25 26/8/2003.

In what has been a busy summer transfer season it seems the fun and games have not yet ended. With the recent return of Infinity-eSports and the possibilities of another UK team to take on the world it seems immediate hopes are to be dashed.

The news that m0rph is to join 4Kings will create a few ripples here and there but it does mean they have a full lineup for the upcoming WCG Qualifiers. Infinity-eSports will undoubtedly feel hard done by, time will tell how they move on from this and whether they do choose to attend UKT-X and the WCG Qualifiers.

Good Luck to I-eS and 4K.

T 19:23 27/8/2003	back in the day I thought 4k where lame for 'pimping' danfrag from [-CSA-], but I came to realise the clans that go looking for players to poach and the players that leave their pals/team mates for a better clan deserve each other... clans built like this almost allways fck up unless they are the best, as the members just keep wanting to move to a better team, easy come easy go! [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
m0rph Infinity-eSports 19:39 27/8/2003	lol, yeah because I know that when I play cs I have all my best friends on irc clearly and I go out with them all the time for drinks. Granted there are people I like and dislike on irc, but, dunno about u, maybe ur different, my friends r the ppl i know well in rl :) maybe u make all ur friends on irc T. secondly, I don't mean this at a dig but, you haven't been in a position where a top clan has offered u a position probably. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

m0rph Infinity-eSports 19:44 27/8/2003	and seeing as this is a game, I think you should stop talking about loyalty and stuff, because its ONLYa game. If one makes money and wins prizes from it, even better coz its a mess around hobby, and if the quickest way of getting to the top and winning is moving teams, then I think anyone with a chance to do so will do nothing personal intended, just a thought [Comment: Report IP: Logged]
T 20:39 27/8/2003	my comments wherent aimed at u m0rph, i dont know anything about your particular situation I dont need to know what it was like to be offered a 'top clan' place as im not a 'career' clanner I play cs for fun, which to me is playing cs with people i get along with rather than joining the best possible team and lanning. dont take this as a dig, but you seemed to turned from 'quitting cs, look at me I have a social life' to the pro gamer sterotype ;) the two cant realistically be done together without conflicts arising more so the higher level of cs being played. [Comment: Report IP: Logged]

StriKeN unicon.cs 16:00 28/8/2003	in that interview he says he made a pact with his i-eS clan mates not to join 4K even if asked...

yet he does this?

I see your point m0rph, it is only a game, and if you get to win prizes, travel the world and everything, for "just a game", although you have to think.... do your team mates in 4K consider it "Just a game", because your laid back attitude towards CS might not fit into the team well at all, and when you start playing for $50,000, if you lose out, it simply isn't a case of

"oh well only a game"

"people that beat us are just fing nerds anyway"

I do agree with T strongly on a lot of points, some players are very self aware of their image and constantly impress on the community around them that they like to go out drinking and get ped, you are one of them - why so self concious? You seem a bit hypocritical, treading on your team mates to get to the top, yet with such a laid back attitude towards it. I mean I don't know the internal specifics but to a lot of people, it just looks like you stabbed your team mates in the back.

Anyway you're at the top of the CS ladder with a whole community looking up enviously at you now. That's me done, good luck at 4K, hope it all works out, as I said earlier, for all parties concerned!
