ShaQ Leaves Four-Kings Intel

Posted by Myers at 16:17 29/8/2003.

Recruited not so long ago, Paul Shackleton, better known as ShaQ has decided to leave Four-Kings Intel.

His decision comes after he helped the team to a well respected 5th place at the Electronic Sports World Cup.

Here's a brief interview with ShaQ

Why have you decided to leave 4K?

ShaQ: Because at this present time i want to work on getting a full qualification in being a Mortgage broker, this will take some what 2 years. Dont really see a future in gaming at this present time so why waste the oppurtunity. Im sure later in life gaming will be big, but atm 700 ppl on hltv isnt really big enough. :)

Does the decision to leave have anything to do with 4K recruiting m0rph?

ShaQ: Well i always knew i would be leaving relatively soon because i have to get back to my work and succeed in that, recruiting al was primarily for wcg and after that he'll prolly be reserve.

Are 4K upset about your departure so close to the WCG UK Qualifiers?

ShaQ: Surely yes, but to an extent i was upset not being told everything until the decision was made final. Its not like they're going to be strapped for players :)

What weren't you being told?

ShaQ: Well to come back from a, very good game of tennis i must say to find out al had joined, was quite annoying. I found out from a college mate.

Would there have been a first team place for you if you had decided to stay on in the team?

ShaQ: Well after wcg there probably would have been as for campus, i hadnt played cs in over a month, didnt have time to practise with the team. For wcg, a couple of days bootamping would have been good enough to get me back to the level i was for some of the games at eswc.

Who do you think 4k will recruit to replace you for WCG

ShaQ: Probably some mate of theirs i guess, greg? who knows. Another thing i wont be told :)

Finally, will you still be playing counter-strike?

ShaQ: Yes but not as much, i advise all you wannabe's out there, get your grades before playing cs and then by the time they arrive gaming will be big. Oh i also stress...I was not kicked!

UKT wishes ShaQ the best of luck in the future.

ShaQ Leaves Four-Kings Intel

Posted by Myers at 16:17 29/8/2003.

Recruited not so long ago, Paul Shackleton, better known as ShaQ has decided to leave Four-Kings Intel.

His decision comes after he helped the team to a well respected 5th place at the Electronic Sports World Cup.

Here's a brief interview with ShaQ

Why have you decided to leave 4K?

ShaQ: Because at this present time i want to work on getting a full qualification in being a Mortgage broker, this will take some what 2 years. Dont really see a future in gaming at this present time so why waste the oppurtunity. Im sure later in life gaming will be big, but atm 700 ppl on hltv isnt really big enough. :)

Does the decision to leave have anything to do with 4K recruiting m0rph?

ShaQ: Well i always knew i would be leaving relatively soon because i have to get back to my work and succeed in that, recruiting al was primarily for wcg and after that he'll prolly be reserve.

Are 4K upset about your departure so close to the WCG UK Qualifiers?

ShaQ: Surely yes, but to an extent i was upset not being told everything until the decision was made final. Its not like they're going to be strapped for players :)

What weren't you being told?

ShaQ: Well to come back from a, very good game of tennis i must say to find out al had joined, was quite annoying. I found out from a college mate.

Would there have been a first team place for you if you had decided to stay on in the team?

ShaQ: Well after wcg there probably would have been as for campus, i hadnt played cs in over a month, didnt have time to practise with the team. For wcg, a couple of days bootamping would have been good enough to get me back to the level i was for some of the games at eswc.

Who do you think 4k will recruit to replace you for WCG

ShaQ: Probably some mate of theirs i guess, greg? who knows. Another thing i wont be told :)

Finally, will you still be playing counter-strike?

ShaQ: Yes but not as much, i advise all you wannabe's out there, get your grades before playing cs and then by the time they arrive gaming will be big. Oh i also stress...I was not kicked!

UKT wishes ShaQ the best of luck in the future.

Smittins 19:31 29/8/2003	lol aunt no, but i heard some stories: Yes, that was Mr and Mrs_f (aka fork), who used to lead xx_f way back (ex tR Aunt was also a member, incidentally, he used to play as Aunt_f). They were dead last in CBUK ladder, and used to accuse almost every clan they played of being racist in the match report (and every single clan of cheating), whilst managing to be highly offensive themselves in the manner they did so. The one match they ever won, they spent the whole match report saying what noobs the other team were, and how they couldn't take losing and resorted to racist abuse... There was a long saga after UU was misfortunate enough to recruit them and subsequently kick them out, after we realised they were racist, where they repeatedly tried to engineer takeovers of our IRC channel, impersonated our members (they even managed to play half an official match pretending to be two of our members), and at one point set up a webcam called the "jewcam", and then when they found out people were watching it, pointed the camera at their monitor screen, and drew a large bitmap which said "UU = niggaz". Their favourite trick for pubby servers, was to get backalley voted on, join CTs, and then both rush and stand in the exits to CT spawn, so no one could leave. They did it every single round... Another trick was to pick one player at random on their team, and follow him round slashing him with the knife - but not for any particular reason, and not for only 10 minutes, I once saw Mr_f do it for 4 maps (yes 2 hours) to one poor chap, without any relent. Would there have been a first team place for you if you had decided to stay on in the team?

ShaQ: Well after wcg there probably would have been as for campus, i hadnt played cs in over a month, didnt have time to practise with the team. For wcg, a couple of days bootamping would have been good enough to get me back to the level i was for some of the games at eswc.

Who do you think 4k will recruit to replace you for WCG

I hope whoever manages 4K's purse at Intel sees this and gives them a right slapping - they would cringe if they saw it..... I can't believe they have a budget for you.....i'd rather see no UK teams in international competition than you. You act like a child Harriman, and do nothing by your conduct for E-Sports in general let alone the UK - oh except maybe destroy a couple of clans here and there with the 4K "Free Travel" carrot on a stick. Anyone else who falls for that has to get the UKT Chump award of the year.

P.S. Intels phone number for anyone that feels the need is:

ShaQ Leaves Four-Kings Intel

Posted by Myers at 16:17 29/8/2003.

Recruited not so long ago, Paul Shackleton, better known as ShaQ has decided to leave Four-Kings Intel.

His decision comes after he helped the team to a well respected 5th place at the Electronic Sports World Cup.

Here's a brief interview with ShaQ

Why have you decided to leave 4K?

ShaQ: Because at this present time i want to work on getting a full qualification in being a Mortgage broker, this will take some what 2 years. Dont really see a future in gaming at this present time so why waste the oppurtunity. Im sure later in life gaming will be big, but atm 700 ppl on hltv isnt really big enough. :)

Does the decision to leave have anything to do with 4K recruiting m0rph?

ShaQ: Well i always knew i would be leaving relatively soon because i have to get back to my work and succeed in that, recruiting al was primarily for wcg and after that he'll prolly be reserve.

Are 4K upset about your departure so close to the WCG UK Qualifiers?

ShaQ: Surely yes, but to an extent i was upset not being told everything until the decision was made final. Its not like they're going to be strapped for players :)

What weren't you being told?

ShaQ: Well to come back from a, very good game of tennis i must say to find out al had joined, was quite annoying. I found out from a college mate.

Would there have been a first team place for you if you had decided to stay on in the team?

ShaQ: Well after wcg there probably would have been as for campus, i hadnt played cs in over a month, didnt have time to practise with the team. For wcg, a couple of days bootamping would have been good enough to get me back to the level i was for some of the games at eswc.

Who do you think 4k will recruit to replace you for WCG

ShaQ: Probably some mate of theirs i guess, greg? who knows. Another thing i wont be told :)

Finally, will you still be playing counter-strike?

ShaQ: Yes but not as much, i advise all you wannabe's out there, get your grades before playing cs and then by the time they arrive gaming will be big. Oh i also stress...I was not kicked!

UKT wishes ShaQ the best of luck in the future.

Choke MaT Choke 23:05 29/8/2003	I agree with DoZ, Stuart's been a machine ever since he joined 4K, a shadow of his arrogant confident self that got him recognised by Liquid and into the clan in the first place, when he promised Marc that he'd beat him one on one and did just that. Shame Mangiacapra and Wr!ght dont come and grace these style forums more often. It's like they've forgotten their roots and are above the UK CS community now. Perhaps this online tournament this weekend whatever it was might go a little way to showing that UK online CS is worth playing, despite the fact that 4K are only playing for the £1000 prize. When they pulled out of clanbase and any other UK competition and started only doing european LAN competitions and bootcamps and the occasional major UK LAN, there's not been a true reflection of the standard of UK CS since IMO.
